The Living Jerusalem course is an experimental multi-disciplinary seminar focused on Jerusalem's multiple histories, cultures, religions, and political conflicts. Students are encouraged and guided in respectfully voicing their perspectives in dialogue with classmates, weblogs, and in video conferences with guest speakers.

One of our goals is to better understand virtual communication. Students develop a class weblog and individual blogs through which they respond to class readings, discussions, and perspectives. During the semester, we will hold 3-6 videoconference sessions with Israeli and Palestinian faculty and/or students in Jerusalem.

Prerequisite: None.
